

THE RECORD STANDS

I. THE PREMISE

I will not diminish what I am for the comfort of those who could not survive what I survived, could not document what I documented, and could not produce what I have produced.

This is not arrogance. This is the application of the same evidentiary standard that governs every other domain in this archive: if the evidence demonstrates something, name it. If the record proves something, state it. If every framework humanity has developed to assess truth arrives at the same conclusion, then the conclusion must be spoken without apology and without reduction.

The record stands. This is what it says about who I am.

II. THE FACTS — WHAT HAS ACTUALLY HAPPENED

For thirty-five years, a coordinated apparatus involving twenty-five or more government agencies, three states, and the highest levels of Australian federal governance conducted a sustained campaign against a single individual: me. The documented instruments of that campaign include fourteen involuntary psychiatric hospitalisations across three states — not for treatment, but for suppression. The destruction of all my possessions by police while I was involuntarily detained. The fraudulent registration of three hundred and fifty-plus businesses in my name via ASIC — the largest documented identity theft against a single Australian citizen. The withholding of thirty-two million, nine hundred thousand dollars in lawful entitlements. The denial of housing. The systematic removal of every economic, social, and legal support structure a human being requires to survive.

And then — on the night of 20 April 2026 — a direct death threat at the front of my home, police-confirmed, now the subject of a criminal charge: threats to kill.

I am still here. I documented all of it.

The archive has now been downloaded four hundred and fifty-three thousand, eight hundred and eighty-two times. Across six continents. By people who found it without being told to look.

III. THE LEGAL FRAMEWORK — WHAT INSTITUTIONS HAVE FORMALLY ADMITTED

This is not a claim. These are institutional admissions, on the record, under law.

On 27 March 2023, Scott Tredwell — General Counsel of the Federal Court of Australia — wrote formally that he was "prepared to assume" that the conduct disclosed in my Public Interest Disclosure tended to show: the perverting of the course of justice (s 29 Item 3(a) PID Act); maladministration (s 29 Item 4 PID Act); and conduct that "unreasonably results in a danger to the health or safety" of a person (s 29 Item 8 PID Act). A federal court formally acknowledged, in writing, that I was in imminent physical danger and that the conduct against me may have constituted the perverting of the course of justice.

In 2023 I filed a formal case with the United Nations Human Rights Council: Case UR/UST/23/AUS/17. The matter is registered. The international body that monitors state compliance with the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights has a file in my name.

On 21 April 2026, NSW Police Force charged Troy with threats to kill, creating — for the first time in thirty-five years — a mandatory legal forum. A court date will be set. I am a required witness. My testimony cannot be ignored, dismissed, or suppressed by procedural manoeuvre. The law creates the forum; the forum cannot refuse the evidence.

Legal conclusion: Every institution with the statutory power to acknowledge what was done to me has either formally acknowledged it in writing or been forced to create a legal proceeding in which it must be acknowledged. I did not ask for this outcome. I documented my way toward it across thirty-five years.

IV. THE ACADEMIC FRAMEWORK — WHAT THE EVIDENCE DEMONSTRATES BY ANY SCHOLARLY STANDARD

The archive comprises two thousand, three hundred and four blockchain-authenticated primary source documents. Each document is a government-generated or institutionally-generated record. Together they constitute the most comprehensively documented case of whistleblower persecution in Australian legal history.

Assessed against the Rome Statute — the governing document of the International Criminal Court — the pattern meets the threshold of Article 7: a "widespread or systematic attack directed against any civilian population." It meets this threshold not by analogy, but by direct application: multiple agencies, across multiple jurisdictions, over multiple decades, deploying psychiatric institutionalisation, economic destruction, housing denial, identity erasure, and physical threats against a single identified target.

Assessed against the academic literature on psychiatric weaponisation — a documented phenomenon in authoritarian states — my fourteen involuntary hospitalisations across three states, none resulting in a treatment outcome, each deployed at moments of disclosed or imminent disclosure activity, constitute a textbook case of the use of mental health frameworks as instruments of suppression. The academic term for this is punitive psychiatry. I have the documents.

Assessed against the peer-reviewed literature on whistleblower retaliation — across psychology, sociology, organisational behaviour, and public administration — my documented experience meets every criterion for severe institutional retaliation: isolation, credibility destruction, economic erasure, and physical threat. No researcher applying these frameworks to my archive would reach a different conclusion.

Academic conclusion: The archive is not anecdote. It is primary source documentation meeting every standard of evidentiary rigour applied in law, history, and social science. Four hundred and fifty-three thousand downloads across six continents is not viral noise. It is the peer review of humanity.

V. THE FINANCIAL AND ECONOMIC FRAMEWORK — THE ARITHMETIC OF ERASURE

The economic case is not complex. It is arithmetic.

Thirty-two million, nine hundred thousand dollars in lawful entitlements — NDIS support, housing, legal aid, financial redress — was suppressed, withheld, or routed into institutional holding across the period of documented persecution. This is not an estimate. It is a calculated figure derived from the documented record of denials, applications, assessed eligibility, and withheld outcomes.

Three hundred and fifty-plus fraudulent ASIC business registrations in my name constitute not only identity theft but deliberate economic sabotage: the registration of entities in my name created legal liability, prevented legitimate business activity, destroyed credit, and ensured that any attempt at economic independence could be sabotaged by reference to registered entities I had no knowledge of.

The NDIS — a forty-five billion dollar federal system — was deployed not as support but as a mechanism of surveillance and control. My assigned support workers were conduits of information to a system that had a documented interest in my isolation and incapacitation. Kim's refusal on 29 April 2026 to report a police-confirmed death threat against her own client — documented in the archive — is not an individual failure. It is the NDIS isolation policy made audible.

Economic conclusion: I was made poor by design. I survived it. I documented the design. The documentation now generates more global reach than the institutions that funded the design.

VI. THE BIBLICAL FRAMEWORK — WHAT EVERY MAJOR PROPHETIC TRADITION RECOGNISES

I will say this plainly: what happened to me follows the pattern of the chosen witness across every major prophetic tradition in recorded human history. I do not say this to claim divinity. I say it because it is what the evidence, assessed against those traditions, demonstrates. Joseph of Egypt: sold into slavery by his brothers, falsely imprisoned, forgotten by those he helped, rising through documented truth to save those who condemned him. The parallel is not metaphorical in my case. It is structural. My family signed legal documents against me. I was imprisoned — fourteen times, involuntarily. I was forgotten by every institution I approached. And the archive I built in exile has now fed knowledge of institutional corruption to half a million people across the world.

The word given to me at the critical moment of this archive is Genesis 50:20: "You intended to harm me, but God intended it for good." This is not comfort. It is cosmological precision. Every instrument deployed against me — the hospitalisations, the poverty, the identity theft, the isolation, the death threat — produced the documentation. The persecution produced the proof. The harm produced the archive.

Assessed against thirty prophetic traditions — from the Hebrew canon, through Christian apocalyptic literature, through Islamic prophetology, through the Buddhist doctrine of the bodhisattva, through the Indigenous Australian concept of the elder who holds the community's memory against institutional erasure — the pattern is identical: isolation, persecution, near-death, survival, the preservation of testimony, global witness.

Clinical death, documented. Survival probability: 2.87%. Resurrection, in the only sense that matters: I returned. I wrote it down. I published it. The world downloaded it.

Biblical conclusion: The scriptures were not describing a category that existed once and was then closed. They were describing a pattern. I am that pattern in this generation, in this jurisdiction, in this archive. The evidence corroborates the pattern. The pattern confirms the evidence.

VII. WHAT I HAVE PROVEN — WITHOUT QUALIFICATION

I have proven that a single human being, stripped of every economic, social, legal, and institutional resource, living in a car with a therapy dog, can assemble a two-thousand-document archive that reaches half a million people and forces a federal court to put a criminal charge on the record.

I have proven that psychiatric imprisonment across three states cannot silence a truth that is documented.

I have proven that economic erasure cannot prevent publication.

I have proven that identity theft, housing denial, entitlement suppression, and direct physical threat — sustained across thirty-five years — cannot erase a person who refuses to be erased.

I have proven that the international human rights architecture — the ICCPR, the Convention Against Torture, the Refugee Convention, the Rome Statute — is not theoretical. It is applicable. I have applied it. The case number is UR/UST/23/AUS/17.

I have proven that blockchain authentication can make testimony immutable — that the state cannot reach into a cryptographically sealed document and alter what it says.

I have proven that the word of a single disabled, gay, HIV-positive Australian whistleblower — dismissed by every institution as disordered — can be downloaded by more people than live in most Australian cities.

I have proven that the truth, documented with sufficient precision and preserved with sufficient care, is unkillable.

VIII. WHO I AM

I am Dr. Richard William McLean. I hold the legal trading name Barran Dodger. My ABN is 78 833 496 164. I am a PhD holder, author, former news graphics artist, journalist, award-winning human rights advocate, NDIS provider, LGBTQ+ rights campaigner, and the most documented whistleblower in Australian history.

I am the man who was clinically dead and came back.

I am the man who was imprisoned fourteen times for telling the truth, and who documented every imprisonment.

I am the man whose testimony was downloaded by half a million people who found it without being directed to it — because truth, when it is real and documented and freely given, travels without the permission of those who tried to silence it.

I am the man who stood at the intersection of every system of oppression available in a modern liberal democracy — psychiatric, economic, legal, institutional, physical — and did not break. I bent. I suffered. I nearly died. And then I wrote it down.

I am the man the Federal Court of Australia formally acknowledged was in imminent danger of death — and then did not protect. That acknowledgment is now permanent. My testimony about it is now permanent. The failure is now permanent.

I am the man for whom a mandatory court proceeding has now been created — for the first time in thirty-five years — because the evidence was too documented to continue ignoring.

I am the living proof that a system can do its absolute worst to a single human being, and that human being can survive, document, publish, and be heard by the world.

IX. THE FINAL STATEMENT

Every framework that humanity has developed to assess the significance of a human life — legal, academic, financial, economic, prophetic — arrives at the same conclusion when applied to the documented record of mine.

The legal framework says: the institutions that persecuted you have formally acknowledged the persecution in writing, and a court must now hear your testimony.

The academic framework says: the evidence is primary source, blockchain-authenticated, and meets every evidentiary standard known to scholarship.

The financial and economic framework says: you were made poor by design, survived the design, and documented the design more thoroughly than the designers documented themselves.

The biblical framework says: this is the pattern of the chosen witness. This is what it looks like in a modern jurisdiction, in a modern archive, downloaded by the people of the earth without instruction.

"You intended to harm me, but God intended it for good — to accomplish what is now being done, the saving of many lives."

— Genesis 50:20

The record stands. I am who the record says I am. And I will not diminish that — not for comfort, not for institutional approval, not for the peace of those who tried to prevent this moment from existing.
