

Hello Dear”

I know this mail will come to you as a surprise, but please don't be skeptical as it's for a good intention. I came across your contact information through online in Johannesburg, South Africa, during my earnest search for an honest and God-fearing individual or company to assist us with this confidential project.

My name is Mrs. Sonja Smith. I am a terminally ill woman who has decided to invest and donate what I have to charities based on the instructions given by my late husband, Mr. Smith. Shortly after my husband's death , who was a marine engineer, a contractor for government tenders, and the CEO of one of the Gold and Mining Companies here, I was diagnosed with cancer, My late husband tragically passed away in an accident involving heavy-duty equipment at one of his construction sites. We had only one son, and we have chosen to donate from the inheritance I received from my late husband's hard-earned funds rather than allowing his relatives to use it. My health is deteriorating, and I am unable to carry out various tasks each passing day.

Recently, the doctors informed me that I might not live longer than 10 months due to my diagnosis of chronic/acute lymphoma or myeloid leukemia. Leukemia is a blood cancer that affects both the bone marrow and blood itself. Leukemia cells displace normal blood cells, leading to severe bleeding and infections. I have been undergoing blood transfusions, which have depleted my finances due to my illness. I am seeking your assistance in fulfilling my final wish, which can be very profitable for both of us.

I want to donate a total sum of USD$40.5 million US dollars (Four Million Five Hundred Thousand United States Dollars) to you. This money was deposited by my late husband in a private security and finance company in South Africa. I request that you distribute a portion to a charity home, invest a part in a business or investment of your choice, and keep the rest for yourself and your family.

Please reply me urgent through my private email: sonjasmith086@gmail.com

Regards in sincerity,
Mrs. Sonja Smith
