

NCAT Case Complaint by Barran Dodger

Date: September 12, 2024

Introduction

I am writing to seek urgent intervention regarding ongoing financial abuse, coercion, and systemic neglect I am facing under the NDIS system, which is but one facet of a broader populace of government agencies following a mandate of my destruction as a targeted individual.

My Declaration of Peace and Non-Harm

I wish to make it clear that despite the immense psychological abuse and social rejection I have endured, I mean no harm, and I will not hurt anyone. I love people and miss them, and I understand the reasons they have turned away from me. The world's silence and institutional neglect have only deepened my persecution, but I refuse to retaliate with violence or malice.

Targeted Individual (TI) and Voice-to-Skull (V2K) Technology

The persecution I face is well documented, especially in my second autobiography, Betrayed, Forsaken, Murdered. This extensive harassment - driven by advanced surveillance techniques and voice-to-skull technology (V2K) - has isolated me from society and eroded my mental health. No-touch torture, psychological warfare, and systemic neglect have been used to break me down without ever laying a hand on me.

Systemic Persecution and Financial Abuse

I have been scapegoated and abandoned by the very institutions that should have provided protection and assistance. The wrongful termination from The Age, public defamation by The Herald Sun, and the targeted harassment by government agencies and individuals have left me financially and emotionally devastated. Despite this, I am still here, demanding what is rightfully mine: a safe home, basic necessities like food and medicine, and the compensation owed to me for the years of torment I have suffered.

Persecution as a Scapegoat

I have been made a scapegoat for larger systemic issues, targeted not for my actions, but as part of a broader scheme to silence and destroy those who expose corruption. Pre-informed bias and psychometric profiling have been weaponized against me, ensuring that I am treated as guilty without trial or evidence. These tools, employed by powerful individuals and institutions, have subjected me to persecution far beyond what any individual should bear.

Forgiveness, Resilience, and My Rightful Place

Despite the suffering I have endured, I choose to forgive those who have wronged me. However, forgiveness does not negate the need for justice. I seek what is rightfully due to me: compensation for the wrongs I have suffered, access to a safe home, food, and medicine, and the recognition of the systemic failures that led to my persecution. I was sacrificed, resurrected by a hand of fate, forsaken again, but I stand here today with the strength to forgive. I ask for the opportunity to live with dignity, free from persecution, with my basic human rights restored.

Conclusion

Thank you for your attention to this matter. I trust that the truth of my circumstances will be recognized, and I will be given the justice I seek.

Sincerely,

Barran Dodger
