Hey there,

Thanks for applying with Nimble.

This notice is to inform you we obtained a credit report about you from a credit reporting body called illion (formerly known as Dun & Bradstreet or D&B). You can contact illion at <https://www.creditcheck.illion.com.au/> to access your credit report for free within 90 days.

To assess your loan application, we rely on information from a number of sources, including the details you provide to us and the credit information supplied to us by credit reporting bodies.

Some of the factors we consider when making an application unsuccessful for credit include:

- the adequacy of your income and other resources to meet repayments;
- your other debts and liabilities;
- the security of your employment; and
- your credit history, including things such as previous bankruptcy, defaults, serious credit infringements, high numbers of credit applications, and unsatisfactory repayment history.

It's important that you're proactive in checking that the information contained in your credit report is accurate. You can request access to, and correction of, the credit information we hold about you.

If you've got any objections about the way we've handled your privacy, you can access our correction and complaints process via our privacy policy at, www.nimble.com.au email us at customercare@nimble.com.au, or call 133 156.

If you have any questions, or you'd like to review this notice any further with us, please give us a call on 133 156 and we'll be happy to discuss it with you.

Kind regards,

The Nimble team
